Introduction

Within the boundlessly exuberant pockets of Innoventions'26, Minds in Motion isn't just an expertly crafted psychological symposium; it's a scientist's heaven. Ranging from high-pressure trivia rounds to formal advocacy, there quite literally is something for everyone here. And where's the fun without a challenge? This category is not for the faint of heart (quite the opposite, actually). Prove us wrong.

Round 1: Snap Matching (Elimination round)

Delegate Count: 1–2

Duration: 1 hour

Teams will compete against each other in a game of Kahoot. Teams will be presented with psychology-related scenarios and asked to identify the relevant research methodology, variables, demand characteristics, or other methodological concepts on their devices. Delegates with longer streaks will earn more points. An incorrect answer will not result in a point deduction but will end the team's streak. Faster correct answers will also earn more points. Delegates will be challenged on:

- Identification of IV and DV
- Experimental designs
- Sampling methods
- Demand characteristics
- Extraneous Variables
- Ethical Issues
- Reliability and Validity

Round 2: Shark Tank (Non-elimination round)
Delegate Count: 2–4
Duration: 2 hours 30 minutes
This round will have two components:

1. A sustainable pitch
2. A stall

Upon registration, delegates will receive a problem related to the clinical approach.In a Shark Tank-style pitch, delegates will be tasked with developing a solution to the problem assigned to them beforehand and presenting it to the judges. Alongside their solution, delegates will prepare materials for a stall/physical graphic in advance; they will be allowed to display one poster of their prototype and an overview of the product/solution they come up with. The poster does not need to be artistic; it only needs to clearly communicate the purpose and functioning of the team's proposed solution to judges and passersby. Delegates will be provided only with a table; they must bring their own materials and printouts.

Each team will have five minutes to present, followed by two minutes for Q&A. No additional marks will be awarded for a prototype. Posters must be either A1 or A2 size. The top eight teams will qualify for Round 2 based on their cumulative scores from the pitch and stall.
Note: This is not an elimination category.

Round 3: The Box (Elimination round)
Delegate Count: 2–3
Duration: 12 minutes per team
The qualifying teams will be given a case study based on a fictional yet realistic psychological investigation, which they will critically evaluate in a presentation. Delegates should dissect the case study's methodological weaknesses. They will be expected to identify at least three flaws, explain how these flaws affect the study's conclusions, and propose ways to resolve them. Teams will be given 8 minutes to present and an additional 4 minutes for Q&A.

Note: Delegates will be eliminated based on their performance in Rounds 2 and 3

Round 4: Issues & Debates
Delegate Count: 3
Duration: 2 hours
For the final round of the category, teams will go head-to-head in debates on classic topics such as 'Nature vs. Nurture' and 'Conscious vs. Unconscious', along with other pre-classified motions. Each debate will follow the standard parliamentary format, with 3 speakers on each side, representing either the proposition or the opposition. Each speaker will be given five minutes to deliver their speech. Speeches will alternate between the proposition and opposition.

In the final debate, each speaker will be given eight minutes, followed by a four-minute reply speech. The debate will be structured to allow for both constructive arguments and rebuttals, ensuring an engaging and dynamic exchange. Iron-manning is allowed.

Note: Final decisions and any necessary changes will be at the discretion of the category heads.
