ROUND 1

Delegates per team: 1 – 3

No eliminations will occur in this round

A presentation will feature images or representations of notable figures and key terms. Buzzers will be used by each team: as soon as a slide is displayed, the first team to buzz in will have the opportunity to identify the name or complete the term shown. There will be negative marking for incorrect guesses.

Each slide remains active for 45 seconds. If no team answers correctly within this time, the round moves to the next slide without awarding any marks.

If a team guesses correctly, one member will come forward to deliver a one-minute explanation covering the relevant aspects of the image or term, as outlined below:

- Famous Biologists – Explain: Their key achievements. Extra Credit: Accurate dates and associated historical events.
- Word or Phrase (with missing letters) – Explain: The underlying concept (e.g., the role of plasmodesmata and where they are found). Extra Credit: Relating the concept to others (e.g., how old plasmodesmata gaps in xylem vessels allow air locks to be bypassed).
- Disease (with missing letters) – Explain: Symptoms and the nature of the disease (e.g., symptoms of Multiple Sclerosis include fatigue, blurriness, numbness, stiffness .etc. and it is an autoimmune disease). Extra Credit: Additional valid details such as causes, affected body systems, global prevalence, and available treatments.

- Figures/Diagrams – Explain: Special characteristics, uses, or relevant details (e.g., the parts of an electron microscope and their specific functions). Extra Credit: Related interesting facts or unique information.

Note: This criteria is not exhaustive, valid points beyond its scope will be awarded credit at the category heads' discretion.

A total of 20 slides will be presented in each room, arranged in increasing order of difficulty: 10 easy, 5 medium, and 5 hard.

Judging Criteria (for explanation):

- Clarity of Concept (50%)
- Fulfillment of “Explain” Criteria (25%)
- Delivery & Articulation (25%)

Additionally, judges may award discretionary points for fulfillment of "Extra Credit" items, within the maximum points allotted for each difficulty tier.

Delegates per team: 1 – 3
This is an elimination round
Delegates are to step into the shoes of licensed doctors and are required to identify and evaluate a given ilness to the best of their prior knowledge based on the given information. They are presented with a patient case suffering from a specific disease. The presentation includes the main symptoms, past history and other notable facts. This may be presented in a digital format (including pictures) or through a live patient demonstration

Disease Identification and Presentation Examples:
Example: Osteomalacia; an image alongside the symptoms will be presented showcasing typical symptoms (deformed bones etc.). Participants are to identify:

1. The disease in question based on evidence as linked with main symptoms
2. The associated risk factor and life expectancy.
3. Specific laboratory tests to be conducted (CT scan, MRI etc.)
4. Comprehensive solution for treatment of disease (pain management plans, surgical intervention, medication with name, or lifestyle changes.)
5. Final overview including specific medical advice and future outcomes.

Finally, delegates are to give a short presentation of 2-3 minutes regarding their full diagnosis and medical evaluation protocool. External help is striclty prohibited and will be punished by disqualification. Presentations are to be based on prior knowledge only.

Judging Criteria:

- Correct disease identified (30%)
- Correct treatment protocool provided (30%)
- Depth of knowledge relevant to given disease (20%)
- Overall presentation quality, style, and other important numbered factors discussed above (20%)

Delegates per team: 1 – 2

Each station will accommodate three teams. Two decks of cards will be used at each station:-

- Numbers Deck: 12 cards, numbered 1 to 12.
- Questions Deck: 12 cards, each featuring a question designed to be answered quickly within a specified time limit.

Gameplay:

1. The Category Head/s at the station shuffles the Questions Deck and deals 4 cards to each team, face-down and unseen by any party.
2. The Category Head/s then shuffles the Numbers Deck and deals 4 cards to each team. Unlike the Questions Deck, teams may privately view their own Number Cards without revealing them to other teams.
3. Each round of play proceeds as follows:
   - Every team places one Number Card and one Question Card face-down on the table.
   - All Number Cards are revealed simultaneously. The team holding the highest number reveals their Question Card first, and a timer begins immediately.
   - The team must answer within the time limit stated on the card.
   - If correct, the team earns points, discards their own Question Card, and takes both undisclosed Question Cards from the other two teams. All three Number Cards in play are discarded.

- If incorrect or the time limit lapses, the turn passes to the team with the next highest number, who follows the same process for their own Question Card.
- This continues to the team with the third highest number if necessary. If they answer correctly, they earn points and take the remaining Question Card; if not, no points are awarded. In both cases, all cards in play are discarded.

4. This cycle repeats until all Number Cards are exhausted: a total of four rounds per station.

At the end of play, the team holding the most Question Cards receives a 30 point bonus. In the event of a tie between two teams, each receives 15 points, with the remaining team receiving no bonus. If all three teams hold an equal number of cards, each receives 10 points.

Note: There will be negative marking for disclosing the Questions Cards without permission or showing any other team any card.

The category heads reserve the right to make changes to the proceedings of the rounds at any given time.
